ROUTED THE WILDCAT.

Both Man and Beast Were Scared by the Encounter.

"The wildcat is a vicious animal, but you can bluff him if you go about it in the right way," said a man who has had some experience in the wilder section of the country, "and I say this because of an experience I had some years ago in Arkansas. I was a stranger in that section of the country and in fact had never had experience of any sort in the wild regions of the country. I had gone into Arkansas from another state right after the war for the purpose of looking after a real estate venture in that section of the state of which Jonesboro is now the thriving and prosperous center. At that time railroads were scarce in Arkansas, as in many other states, and there were long stretches of country not to be reached at all except by traveling through the densest kind of wilderness. This was precisely what I had to do when I went into that section to look after the real estate venture to which I have referred, and it was on this occasion that I had my first experience with a wildcat. I was jogging along through the swamp when suddenly from a tangled and matted canebrake I heard a shriek which almost lifted me out of my saddle, and even the sober sided, pokey horse I was riding was jostled out of his lazy mood and showed a disposition to shy a little bit. I did not know why I did it, but for some reason I put forth a shrill shriek that simply made the wilderness shake. The cane began to pop in the direction from which the wildcat's cry had come. The animal was making for tall timber. I had evidently convinced him that he was just about face to face with the king of the forest. At any rate, he scooted. I guess I must have been frightened when I shrieked an answer to the piercing cry of the cat, though I did not realize it, or it may have been lingering traces of the primitive man something a trifle more savage and more animal-like than we know in our refined environment. Evidently the wildcat was badly frightened by the defiance and loudness of my shrill answer, and it taught me that a bluff might be a good thing in times of danger of attack from wild animals, just as it is a good thing sometimes when we are dealing with our own kind."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Main Thing.

"A village client of mine had been trying through me for seven years to collect a claim against the government," said the lawyer, "and at last the claim was allowed, and I received a check for $8,000.

"As the man was poor, I knew that this would be a great windfall for him, and it was with considerable exaltation that I put the check in my pocket and started for the house. The man himself was away somewhere, but as his wife answered my knock I showed her the check and called out:

"'At last, Mrs. Davis, at last!'

"'What is it?' she asked.

"'The claim has been allowed, and here is a check for $8,000!'

"'Yes, I see,' she answered, 'but please don't talk quite so loud or you will wake the baby up!'"—Chicago News.

The First Coffee.

In the year 1285 a dervish named Hadji Omar, a native of the town of Mocha—hence the familiar name—was lost in an Arabian desert and was dying of hunger when he discovered some small, round berries, but, trying to eat them, found them, to his disgust, impossibly bitter. Then he tried roasting them and finally steeped a few thus roasted in water. Naturally this was coffee, and, though of the worst description, so agreeable did Hadji Omar find it that as soon as he could make his way back to his native town he introduced the wise men of the city to this new drink. So well pleased were they with it that the dervish was made a saint.

The Usual Form.

This story is told by a Georgia congressman. One day an old negro asked his mistress, a woman of unusual education and refinement, to write a letter for him. "Write it to my gal."

"What shall I write?" asked his mistress good naturedly.

"Waal, I dunno, but jest say, 'Notwithstanding.'" A few lines were written, working in the desired word.

"What next?"

"Waal, missis, jest tell her to 'scuse bad spellin' and writin'!"

Relieved From One Job.

The new spirit had just arrived in inferno.

"No," grinned an imp, "we never let the fire go out."

"Thank goodness!" replied the shade. "Then I won't have to take the stovepipe down!"

Gnashing his teeth, Satan perceived he could not do his worst.—New York Tribune.

IN SAVINGS BANKS.

Romances That Come to Light In Their Everyday Business.

A ragged little newsboy entered a Pittsburg bank one day and boldly invaded the private office of the president.

"Say, mister," he said, "can I put some money in this bank?"

"Certainly you can," the president answered. "How much do you want to deposit?"

"A quarter!" exclaimed the youngster, pulling a handful of pennies and nickels out of his pocket. The banker took him over to the receiving teller and introduced him with all the deference that he would have shown to a millionaire.

The boy left the city soon after opening the account, but he kept adding to his deposit from time to time, and as he was naturally bright and shrewd everything he undertook prospered. He is back in Pittsburg now, the head of a successful manufacturing concern and one of the bank's most valued customers.

A year ago a proud young father out in Michigan sent $25 to open an account for his first born son, then less than a week old. "The boy'll need it some of these days," he wrote, "and we may as well begin to save for him right off." Six months later a tear dimmed letter came asking to withdraw the money to pay the little fellow's funeral expenses.

A working woman in a little town in New York sent a dollar bill in the name of her daughter, six years of age. "She'll be marrying by and by," she said, "and ought to have something to start life on." That was nearly two years ago, and almost every week since a dollar bill has been added to the account. There'll be a snug little marriage portion for the young lady some day if nothing happens.

Not long ago a woman living in Illinois sent $5, with explicit instructions not to let her "old man" know about it, as "he'd be after spending every cent of it for drink."—William S. Power in Success Magazine.

A Cigar Story.

A few of the friends of a Broadway cigar dealer enjoy at times high priced smokes for very little money.

The dealer in question carries several lines of one and two dollar cigars as well as one brand selling for $2.50. These are naturally made of the richest Havana leaf and are especially attractive to an insect which burrows into the cigar, making a hole as large as the head of a pin and perhaps a quarter of an inch deep. The insect does not spoil the flavor of the tobacco. But in the higher priced grades it is impossible to offer for sale a patched wrapper, and so these cigars are laid aside to be sold to the favored ones.

They are grouped with regard to the number of perforations, those with a couple of holes selling for 35 cents each, while others go for as low as 15 cents. A bit of cigarette paper wetted and placed over the hole preserves the draft, and the cigar is every bit as good as those in the case.—New York Press.

His Higher Power.

A United States senator was talking about a statesman whose great talents are coupled with an unusual mildness and gentleness of disposition.

"Poor fellow!" said the senator. "His wife henpecks him. When he was governor he had a page boy who stole some postage stamps, and the governor in his gentle way set out to give him a little religious admonition.

"'Willie, he said, 'don't you know that there is a higher power always watching us?'

"'Yes, sir,' said the page.

"'Who is it,' the governor went on, 'who sees and hears all we do and before whom even I am as a worm?'

"'The missus, sir,' said Willie."

The Attraction.

The assistant pastor of the church had been in charge of the service one Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor, and he was greatly pleased when one of the women of the congregation said to him:

"My sister and I always come out when you preach, Mr. ——."

He was about to express his appreciation of the compliment when his supposed admirer continued naively:

"You see, when you preach it is easy to find seats."—New York Post.

Mixed Metaphors.

A butler was convicted of stealing his master's wine, and the judge in giving judgment exclaimed somewhat pompously:

"Dead to every claim of natural affection, blind to your own interests, you have burst through all the restraints of religion and morality and have for many years been feathering your own nest with your master's bottles. Truly it was not a 'bed of roses.'"

Wanted Some Himself.

A traveling agent for a large wholesale grocery house was selling a bill of goods to one of his customers, a grocer in a little village. "Now," he said, "to wind up with, don't you want a few cans of our maple sirup? You'll find it the best you have ever kept in stock."

"No," said the grocer, "I've plenty of maple sirup."

"When did you get it? I don't remember selling you any when I was here on my last trip"

"You didn't. I got this in the country."

"Is it the real stuff?"

"That's what it is. My brother made it in his own camp. He's got 500 trees."

"I'd like to taste it."

A sample of the country maple sirup was brought out. He tasted it and took the grocer to one side.

"Say," he said in a low tone, "I'm not going back on the strictly pure goods I sell of course, but I want a gallon of this stuff for my own use."

The Air and the Sun.

An old writer says, "When men lived in houses of reed they had constitutions of oak; when they lived in houses of oak they had constitutions of reeds." This is a very fine, picturesque description of the injury which may come to us from fine houses too closely sealed to keep out the fresh air and too heavily curtained, preventing the entrance of sunshine, which is almost or quite as important as air. But it is not at all necessary to have our fine houses unhealthful, and it only requires intelligence and thoughtfulness to render a house of oak as promotent of health as a cabin. Fresh air will come from a well ventilated oaken house as well as through the open cracks in a house of reeds, and sunlight through a window in a palace as well as in a hovel.—Health.

Her Parting Shot.

An old lady well known in a Scotch town for learning and for "taking down" conceited people gave an evening party where a young man was present who was about to leave for an appointment in China, and he formed the object of attraction during the evening. As he was exceedingly extravagant in his conversation about himself, the old lady was all but silent during the evening until he was leaving, when she shook him heartily by the hand, saying, "Tak' 'gude care o' yourself' when ye're awa', for, mind ye, they eat puppies in Cheena!"

A Wise Woman.

"Now, for $2," announced the test medium, "I'll sell you a philter that will make your husband love you to the exclusion of all others."

"I don't think I'll invest," said the practical housewife, "but if you have a philter that'll make him bring home some of his salary on pay days I'll allow you a percentage on the amount realized."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

An Amended Address.

"Mr. Hunter's married now," said the bride to be, preparing to send out her cards, "so we'll have to address his invitation to 'Mr. and Mrs. Hunter.'"

"Better not," her brother advised. "She's the boss, so you'd better send the invitation to 'Mrs. and Mr. Hunteress.'"—Philadelphia Press.

A NIGHTMARE

Gives point to the fact that excessive or irregular eating disturbs the digestion. Nightmare or night hag has its day time correspondence in the undue fullness after eating, with the belchings and sour or bitter rising so often experienced after too hasty or too hearty eating.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia or bad stomach. When the weak stomach is strengthened and invigorated the whole body shares in the increased strength derived from food properly digested and perfectly assimilated.

"I was a victim of sleeplessness and extreme nervousness, induced by chronic indigestion and I felt heavy, tired and worn out continually," writes Miss Mary Smith, of 1013 No. Walsatch Street, Colorado Springs, Colo. "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was the only medicine which relieved me. Within a week after I began using it that heavy oppressed feeling after meals had left me, and I found that I was able to sleep better than for months previously. My appetite was gradually restored, general system was toned up, nervousness became a thing of the past and I have now been in splendid health for over nine months."

Sometimes a selfish dealer tempted by the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines will offer the customer a substitute as being "just as good" as the "Discovery." It may be better for him because it pays better, but it is not as good for you, if you want the medicine that has cured others and which you believe will cure you.

Sonoma Must Carry the Bond Election

At the polls next Thursday, Sonoma's fate will be in the balance when the matter of bonding the town for $10,000 must be decided one way or another. On that decision Sonoma's future prosperity depends. A vote for the bond proposition will mean a boost for Sonoma. A vote against the bond proposition will mean a blow to the town. We must carry the bond election. From all accounts we will carry it. The trustees, in submitting this proposition to the voters, have done so because public opinion demanded it. It is no idea, this one of bonding. It has been successfully tested in progressive communities. Towns that lay dormant for years have by means of bonding been merged into important cities. Every one must concede the necessity of public improvements. In the case of our city hall it is an absolute necessity. The present antiquated structure has long been unsightly and unsafe. In the past it has cost us a small fortune to keep it in repair. The addition of the fire bell tower alone cost $480, exclusive of the bell. The contemplated new structure is to be built of stone and will endure for years and years. It will be a magnificent and substantial improvement to the town. It will show that Sonoma is not lagging in the spirit of progress, and once we have given evidence of this, our population will increase two-fold.

The battle Thursday will be waged between progress and silurianism. Don't go on record as a silurian, and don't be a knocker. We need the city hall and we have not got sufficient funds to build it. The only sane solution to the problem is to vote the bonds. If you were in business in a dingy shack, with a dingy stock, do you think you could draw the trade to your store as quickly as if you had an attractive store and a fresh attractive stock? No, you would have to wait a long time to get sufficient money out of your dingy store to build a good one. If you could get some one, however, to put up the money for the attractive store it would not take you long to pay it back, for your business would build up twice as rapidly. So it is with the new city hall and bonding. Make your city attractive and the improvements will pay for themselves. Increased population and business will do it. Such has been the history of other bonded cities, and history invariably repeats itself. The tax-payers will have twenty years to pay for this improvement, and on the heaviest tax-payers it will be no burden. The interest will be reduced each year and many of us will enjoy the fruits of the improvement while part of the debt can be handed down to the next generation. Let us not wait for the next generation to take the initiative. Let us set an example for them and we will have felt that we have done our duty toward putting Sonoma in line with the most progressive cities of the county. Let us begin Thursday to map out a great future for our town. The way has been pointed out to us—by means of bonding. Do your duty at the polls at this coming election and see what transformation will take place in Sonoma inside of a short time. Some one once said, "God Almighty has done all he can for this section, now it is up to the people." It is strictly up to the people now.

VOTE IN FAVOR OF THE BONDS.

Body of Drowned Youth is Recovered

Rollo Smith's body has been recovered. After being in the water for several days the bay gave up its dead, and a soldier at Fort Baker recovered it. Smith fell overboard from the launch Rob Roy on June 4th, and although efforts were made to reach the drowning man they were unavailing, and it was thought by the bereaved family that they might never again look upon the face of their dear one. A reward of $700 was offered for the recovery of the body, but although fishermen dragged the bay, it refused to give the body up until the allotted time—nine days, said old seamen. The body was washed in by the tide and Wm. Carr, a private in the Coast Artillery, notified the coroner of Marin county. The body was later taken to San Francisco by Roy Smith, a brother of the deceased.

G. H. Hotz was notified of the recovery of the body and went down Tuesday morning.

Miss Rena Yates, formerly of this place, was married Monday afternoon in Santa Rosa to Peter Seeman. The wedding was a quiet one and was solemnized at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Jennie Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Seeman will spend their honeymoon driving through Mendocino and Lake counties and will visit all the popular summer resorts en route.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dread disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OPEN-TOP OBSERVATION CARS

Something New for Travelers to the East

A novelty in railway passenger equipment will shortly be introduced by the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company. Mrs. Lou Larkin, whose father was one of Sonoma's oldest settlers, died in San Francisco last week and was buried on Saturday. Mrs. Larkin's maiden name was Long.

GLEN ELLEN
By Aurora.

Mr. John Cozad has purchased forty acres of land in the mountains of Mr. Vincent.

Mrs. Anna McIntyre of San Francisco has taken possession of her cottage for the summer.

Messrs. William and Ben Behler are doing a rushing business with their new mowing machine.

Henry Chauvet, the well-known wine man, visited San Francisco on business one day this week.

Judge Cook has commenced baling hay on his ranch. The new "Steel Beauty" works like a charm.

Louise Van de Water has brought suit for divorce from her husband, William Van de Water.

Barbier and Sterns are making extensive improvements on their chicken ranch at the warm springs.

The Glen Ellen school closes for the summer on Friday, June 16th. Miss Howard, the teacher, gave the children a good time on the last day.

Mr. Nick Galardi fell from his mowing machine Thursday and was badly bruised up. We hope there will be no serious consequences.

Miss Davidson, teacher of the Dunbar school is preparing for the closing exercises next week. The school is going to give an entertainment. It is a secret, so please don't tell.

Professor Fred Bioletti, of the State University, who lectured at the Farmer's Institute at this place Wednesday, visited several of the principal vineyards in this vicinity on Thursday. Prof. Bioletti is well known here, having resided here many years ago. He has many warm friends who are always glad to see him.

The Ladies' Improvement Club of Glen Ellen gave a luncheon and social last week at Casa Cozy, the beautiful home of the O'Donnell's. The house was artistically decorated with sweet peas, roses, palms and vines and was most attractive. Mrs. O'Donnell was assisted in receiving by her sisters, her niece, Miss Josie Lane and Mrs. Blake of Alameda. A delightful afternoon was spent by the club ladies and their friends. They were entertained with music and the luncheon was bounteous.

The entertainment and dance given Saturday night for the benefit of St. Mary's church was a big success. Mervyn Hall was crowded, and Sonoma was well represented among the audience. The program was excellent, among the numbers being a solo by Jim Small of Sonoma, who took the house by storm and was recalled three times. Mrs. Lulu Emparan and Miss Lucy Wall, accompanied by Miss Hazel Gies, also sang and delighted their hearers. The entertainment was followed by dancing and supper and about $100 was cleared for the worthy cause.

John Harper Weds.

The marriage of John Harper formerly of Schellville but now of San Francisco, and Miss Alice Boorman, took place Tuesday evening, June 6th, at the home of the bride's parents in that city.

The house was tastefully decorated with ferns and carnations, the color scheme being pink and green. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Warren, in the presence of the relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties.

The congratulations being over, all partook of a sumptuous wedding breakfast. The happy young couple departed on their honeymoon, which is to be spent at San José and Santa Cruz. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents.

Communicated

In lieu of the talk favoring the building of a jail for Glen Ellen and as the Glen Ellen Ladies' Improvement Club contemplates lending its assistance to the movement, I take this means of saying a few words concerning the matter

After visiting Vallejo on Reciprocity Day and hearing of the noble and up-lifting work being done by women's clubs in other towns and their improvement of the moral and intellectual standards of their people, I deplore the fact that the women of Glen Ellen should take up work which could never end in uplifting and is the business of the Government, which is bound to protect us from crime and lawlessness.

Admitting that there is a rough element in Glen Ellen, it is a matter of history, that noble men, who have sought to improve similar conditions did so by settlement work—that is to say, by providing libraries, club houses, lectures, concerts, etc., not building jails.

Andrew Carnegie, who wishes to improve the condition of humanity, builds libraries, not jails. If Glen Ellen needs protection she should have protection from the Supervisors.

The women should try and alleviate the cause of existing evils by starting, say a club house, which would benefit everybody all the time. The jail might be useful only occasionally and might result in personal benefit or graft should the unscrupulous get into power. The club house would be beneficial to both the respectable and unrespectable and by interesting themselves in their unfortunate brothers, the respectable might help them to become respectable, too, and in many cases make jails quite unnecessary.

"So many Gods, so many creeds,
So many paths that wind and wind,
When the art of being kind,
Is all this sad world needs."

Let the Glen Ellen ladies cultivate this simple art of kindness and so better the world, when they will perhaps see less necessity for jails.

OLGA GORDENKER.

Glen Ellen, June 14, 1905.

Garden Fete For Church Benefit

The garden fete given Wednesday evening at the F. T. Duhring home for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid of the Congregational church was well attended. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and under the trees pretty booths had been erected where coffee, ice cream and a grab bag were the attractions. The following numbers were rendered during the evening, making up a very enjoyable progarm: piano solo, Marie Clewe; selection, Mandolin Club; solo, Miss Fraser; piano solo, Emily Poppe; vocal solo, Mr. Manchester; vocal solo, Mrs. Weems; cornet duet, Messrs. Johnson and Appleton.

The ladies made about $40, which will be used toward buying a new carpet for the church.

Louis Chance of San Francisco was in town Sunday. Rumor has it that Louis will soon take unto himself a bride. As usual "Hooligan" awaits an invitation.

Ralph Ent has a thoroughbred mule "and her name was Maud." Mr. Ent says he intends to sell the animal to some officer who wants to hunt brigands in the mountains.

El Verano is now overcrowded with summer guests and it looks as if everybody can catch a summer fairy except "Hooligan," who goes about singing, "Every Coon's Got a Lady But Me."

Another close shave for El Verano. Johonnie Green will soon start a barber shop in a tent opposite Felice Clerici's. Mr. Greene was in business here before, but it is too hot in a shop so he'll try the tent route.

A new feature has been inaugurated this season at El Verano Villa. From now on there will be a social hop at this popular resort every night in the week. Ghiradelli's Orchestra, San Francisco, will furnish the music Saturday evenings.

Louis Dufant, the popular and good looking barber at El Verano Villa, went to San Francisco Sunday. It is reported that Louis went down to put some of the easy money he is making in the bank. Hooligan noticed his grip and how he carried it. It must have been heavy with the yellow metal by the way Louis bent his back while getting the grip on the train.

Jas. Lucy, a well-known business man of San Francisco, who is a guest at Sonoma Grove, had a narrow escape from drowning in Sonoma creek, on Tuesday last. Mr. Lucy, while walking along a steep bank of the creek, near the El Verano bridge, made a misstep and fell into a deep pool. Being unable to swim he called lustily for help. His cries were answered by a number of summer visitors, who went to his assistance. Among these was Harry Waldorff of Sonoma Grove, who waded into the creek and thrust his cane toward Mr. Lucy, which he lost no time in grasping and he was landed on terra firma by his rescuer. The incident created wild excitement and while the man was struggling in the water men and women rushed frantically around in quest of a rope to throw to the struggling man, but the cane did the business. After the rescue Mr. Lucy returned to Sonoma Grove to dry out, and his friends now believe that he will hereafter take like a duck to the water and ere the good old summer time is past he will be giving exhibitions of high diving and fancy swimming. Mr. Waldorff is accused of raising "Cain" with Lucy, but the latter says it was all right in this case.

"HAPPY HOOLIGAN."

It has proved itself to be the best remedy for whooping cough, which is prevalent on this end of the globe. It has never failed to relieve in any case where I have recommended it, and grateful mothers after using it, are daily thanking me for advising them." This remedy is for sale by Shoults & Co.

We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by Shoults & Co.
